c) Guidelines to be adopted;

Detailed guidelines have been formulated for the smooth functioning of the scheme. The NOS scheme guidelines are reviewed from time to time and changes for simplifying the procedures and making the process more transparent are made. This year onward, however, it was felt that the overseas scholarship for studying abroad is not needed for the topics/courses concerning Indian Culture, Heritage, History & Social studies on India, considering that Indian Universities are fully and well equipped to guide research based on such topics and most of the resources for these particular subjects are available within the country. These courses anyhow require frequent field visits to India during the course of studies and can thus be better undertaken in India itself and such students may avail of scholarship/fellowship under the other scholarship schemes being implemented by this Department as per their eligibility. This would provide more opportunities to other applicants covered under NOS (SC)etc. for studying abroad in other subjects for which the foreign universities are better known and equipped and would thus help bring into the country more knowledge on such subjects where resources in India are still not sufficient. Also, the selection of candidates from sub fields of Humanities/Social Sciences is still open to candidates who are aspiring to study Law, Economics, Psychology and other subjects which require international exposure.

d) Interaction with the States to get the proposals in time ;

National Overseas Scholarship (NOS) Scheme is a central sector scheme. No selections are made under this scheme State-wise.
